SOLVE ENERGY // EMPLOYEE HANDBOOK

CONFIDENTIAL · INTERNAL USE ONLY

1. Introduction

1.1 About This Handbook

We are pleased to provide you with access to this Employee Handbook. This handbook summarizes some, but not all, of the principal human resource policies in effect at the time it was issued.

This handbook supersedes any other handbooks, memoranda or statements that may have been received in the past. Where the handbook differs from new or revised policies and practices later adopted by Solve Energy (the "Company"), the new or revised policy shall apply. Please note that "Solve Energy" and the "Company" are used interchangeably throughout this employee handbook.

We hope this handbook will help foster open communication and serve as a useful reference. Please read this handbook carefully. It is the employee's responsibility to be familiar with the contents, any amendments to the handbook, and the policies and practices of the Company. The employee can obtain additional information or clarification about the other benefits and policies of the Company from leadership. While we prepared this handbook as a general source of employment information for employees, obviously it does not provide answers to every question. Employees who have questions or suggestions are invited to speak with their supervisor/manager.

Due to the demands of our industry and the rapid change of legislation, we reserve the right to modify, change, remove, replace, or implement benefits, policies or procedures at any time. This handbook should only be considered a set of guidelines and nothing in the handbook is intended to create a contract of continued employment or employment for a specified term. We will make every attempt to keep employees advised and updated about any changes that affect them.

This handbook is considered Confidential Property of the Company. The information is for internal use only and is not to be reproduced or given to anyone outside the Company. Should an employee leave the Company, they may not take a printed or electronic copy with them.

The policies found within the handbook are written to comply with the most generous standard across Canadian jurisdictions.

1.2 About Solve Energy

Your Trusted Canadian Solar Energy Company Leading the Way Toward a Greener Future.

Solve Energy was founded with a deep passion for sustainability and a drive to make a meaningful impact on the world. Founded by Kane Hammontree, a native of Victoria, BC, Solve Energy brings together years of experience, innovation, and dedication to advancing solar energy solutions.

Kane's journey began in Los Angeles, California, where he founded a service company that quickly became a success. Within just six months, his company reached the #1 spot on Google, a testament to Kane's vision and relentless drive. He then focused on honing his skills and developing a deep understanding of what it takes to thrive in the renewable energy space.

As Kane's reputation grew, so did his influence. He became a trusted consultant for CEOs of solar energy companies across the United States, sharing his expertise to help them navigate the evolving energy landscape and drive success. His guidance played a crucial role in the growth of many solar energy companies, solidifying his position as a leading figure in the industry.

Despite his success in the U.S., Kane never forgot his roots. After years of helping others achieve their dreams, he felt a strong pull to return to his hometown of Victoria, BC, to fulfill his commitment to bringing sustainable energy to every family and business across Canada, while also creating fulfilling career opportunities and prosperity for his community. With this vision in mind, Kane founded Solve Energy.

Solve Energy isn't just a solar energy company – it's a commitment to making renewable energy accessible to all Canadians. Founded by Kane and his team with a clear purpose, Solve Energy is dedicated to transforming Canada's energy landscape. Through innovative solutions and a commitment to excellence, Solve Energy is helping to lead the way toward a greener, more sustainable future for all Canadians.

Today, Solve Energy continues to grow, guided by Kane's unwavering belief that everyone deserves access to clean, affordable energy. As Solve Energy expands across Canada, it remains dedicated to its founder's vision: making a positive impact on the world, one solar panel at a time.

1.3 Our Purpose

Our purpose is twofold:

To be able to help millions of families and businesses save money and achieve energy cost independence, reduce the reliance on fossil fuels and have a positive impact on the environment.

And: To remove barriers to clean and accessible power, making sustainable and affordable energy solutions available in every community.

1.4 Changes in Policy

The competitive environment and other conditions of this business are constantly changing. Solve Energy therefore, reserves the right to review, modify and change any of its respective benefits, policies and plans, including those covered in this handbook, at any time with or without advance notice.

Employees will be notified about such changes, as required by applicable federal and provincial and/or territorial law. Changes shall become effective on the dates determined by the Company.

Employees may not rely on policies that have been amended and replaced. No supervisor/manager or representative of the Company has the authority to alter the foregoing.

If employees are uncertain about any policy or procedure, they must check with their supervisor/manager or leadership.

2. Employment Policies

2.1 The Employment Relationship

Employees will be employed in the position set out in their offer of employment and will be expected to perform all the usual duties associated with this position as well as other duties that are reasonably consistent with their level of responsibility.

Due to changing business needs, Solve Energy reviews its structure and organization on an ongoing basis. Occasionally the Company will make changes that may affect an employee's position, qualification, required licences or accreditations, work location, hours of work, reporting relationship, compensation structure, compensation plan terms and policies or practices, without causing termination or breach of an employee's employment and/or employment agreement. There is no promise that an employee's employment will continue for a set period of time or that an employee's employment will be terminated only under particular circumstances.

2.1.1 Employment Eligibility

Solve Energy is committed to employing only individuals who are legally entitled to work in the jurisdiction in which the job opportunity is situated, including meeting any minimum age requirements, and satisfying any other requirements specific to the job opportunity.

Individuals who are legally entitled to work in Canada may be asked to provide applicable documentation to establish employment eligibility.

Employees with questions or seeking more information are encouraged to contact their manager or leadership.

2.1.2 Probationary Period

Newly hired employees are subject to a 90 day probationary period. During this probationary period, Solve Energy will assess and evaluate the employee's competences, skills, qualifications and performance to ensure that there is a good "fit" with the Company. Should the Company terminate the employment relationship at any time during this period, it may do so without any advanced notice or severance, except as prescribed by the applicable employment standards legislation.

2.1.3 Employee Privacy and Confidentiality of Information

Solve Energy takes all reasonable steps to preserve the confidentiality of all personal information it collects to manage its business and maintain the employment relationship and is dedicated to protecting the personal security and privacy of all employees and customers.

The Company may collect the following types of personal information upon commencement of the employment relationship and thereafter to the extent required to administer the employment relationship:

- Name, date of birth, gender, marital status, beneficiaries, identification numbers including social insurance number and other identifying information
- Background information, including education, training, work history and reference information including results from criminal reference checks
- Contact information, such as personal address and phone numbers, email address and emergency contact information
- Health and medical information
- Work history, experience, training and performance information

This type of information is collected for the purposes including, but not limited to, the administration of payroll, benefits and pension plans, collecting employment equity information in accordance with applicable legislation, adhering to various reporting such as income tax reporting, conducting pre-employment screening and verifying credentials and experience relevant to employment.

Employees are responsible for keeping any information they handle confidential, ensuring it is used only for the purpose for which it was collected and is not disclosed or used. Failure to do so may result in disciplinary action up to and including termination of employment.

2.1.4 Personal Data

Solve Energy establishes a personnel file for each employee that includes information relevant to their employment with the Company. It is the employee's responsibility to advise the Company of any change of address, emergency contact data, marital status, dependents, or other pertinent information that could affect their employment or benefit status. Changes should be made by the employee via the QuickBooks Workforce portal. If employees have any questions or problems, they should contact their manager.

2.1.5 Non-Solicitation/Non-Distribution

Solicitation of employees for most reasons constitutes an unwanted intrusion into an employee's time and/or money. We believe that employees should not be solicited, disturbed, or disrupted in the performance of their job duties. Solicitation by both employees and non-employees during working time and in work areas is prohibited. "Solicitation" includes things like asking employees to join organizations, or pools, to buy memberships or subscriptions or to make pledges or gifts. "Working time" does not include meal and break periods, or any other time when an employee is not expected to be engaged in work activities.

The "No Distribution" part of the policy requires that employees and non-employees do not distribute literature during working time, in work areas, or through Company communication channels, including email.

Solicitation and Distribution is permitted by employees, or non-employees engaged in protected concerted activity, in non-working areas when employees are not actively at work. Nothing in this policy is intended to in any way interfere with, coerce, or restrain any employee from exercising his or her rights under any applicable employment standards or labour relations legislation.

Solve Energy reserves the right to take action, up to and including termination, with regard to those individuals who are unable to conduct their behaviour within acceptable standards as spelled out by this policy.

2.1.6 Disciplinary Action

Solve Energy expects that all employees will practice self-discipline and meet performance goals. In the unlikely event that an employee fails to meet those standards, the Company will provide the coaching, counseling, and, in some cases, ongoing and/or serious transgressions or poor performance may warrant disciplinary action.

The Company reserves the right to examine the circumstances surrounding a transgression and interpret those events and apply discipline in compliance with any applicable employment standards legislation.

The steps in the disciplinary process may include one or more of the following:

- Correction - training to correct errors or omissions
- Informal counseling/coaching

- Verbal warning
- Written warning
- Suspension
- Termination

Employees should be aware that one or more of these steps might be disregarded should the behaviour/transgression warrant it. In all cases, the Company will ensure that appropriate investigation is conducted before any disciplinary action is taken.

2.1.7 Employment References

It is the Company's policy to maintain strict confidentiality with respect to all matters relating to the employment or termination of employment of any current or former employee. This policy is for the benefit of both the Company and its employees. Improper employment references can result in lawsuits and significant liabilities to both the individual providing the reference and the Company. The purpose of this policy is to inform employees how to respond to requests for references from prospective employers and to limit the potential for legal liability.

Any requests for employment references must be in writing and directed to leadership. No other employee is authorized to provide any employment references or information about any current or former employee.

No references will be provided to prospective employers without the written consent of the employee for whom a reference has been requested.

The references shall include:

- Employee name
- Employment status
- Job title and description of duties
- Date of hire
- Date of termination

Further, verbal information provided in response to inquiries about current and former employees will be limited to:

1. Date of hire
2. Date of termination
3. Current or last position held

It is the policy and practice of the Company not to disclose any other information about any of its current and former employees. Our decision not to provide any further information about current and former employees should not be considered as a negative comment about the character or performance of such employee.

2.2 Workplace Information Policies

2.2.1 Internal Communications

Solve Energy communicates with employees across several platforms. Email, Slack, and Notion are the primary channels for day-to-day communication, team updates, and Company announcements. QuickBooks Workforce is used for payroll, time tracking, and HR administration. Employees are expected to monitor the relevant channels for their role regularly and stay informed of updates and policy changes. The Company will designate which platform is appropriate for each type of communication.

2.2.2 Business Hours / Work Arrangements

Attendance and punctuality are paramount to the efficiency, productivity, and success of any organization including this Company. An employee's habits and job performance will not only have an impact upon all the other employees, but also will reflect their commitment, dedication, and dependability.

Normal business hours are generally 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. but may vary by location and position. Employees are expected to be at work during normal business hours. Exceptionally, the Company may require that employees work more than the standard business hours and/or standard workweek (for example, if there has been an accident or if urgent work must be done, if permissible under the applicable employment standards legislation).

The majority of Solve Energy roles are in-office or on-site. Employees are expected to work from their designated location unless a remote or hybrid arrangement has been explicitly approved by their manager in writing. Remote or hybrid arrangements are granted at the Company's discretion based on role requirements and business needs, and may be modified or revoked at any time.

2.2.3 Dress Code and Personal Appearance

Employees are expected to dress in a manner, which projects a professional image, appropriate for their respective job responsibilities and business environment. While it is the intent of the Company that all employees dress for their own comfort during work hours, the professional image of our organization is maintained, in part, by the image that our employees present to customers, vendors, and other visitors. It is important that the impression that employees create is professional.

Solve Energy follows a Business Casual dress standard. The following are examples of appropriate business casual attire:

- Khaki pants, chinos, cords or similar trousers or slacks
- Casual dresses and skirts
- Collared shirts, blouses and sweaters
- Blazers and sports coats
- Dress shoes with socks, stockings or tights

The following are examples of inappropriate business casual attire:

- Provocative attire including shorts and/or short skirts, Lycra or Spandex, e.g., bicycle shorts
- Athletic wear including sweat suits, and leggings
- Strapless tops and/or tops with very thin straps, muscle shirts, cropped tops
- Clothing with politically driven logos or the use of language or imagery that can be deemed offensive
- Clothing that is revealing or inappropriate, including clothing that is transparent or otherwise shows undergarments (sheer), torn clothing, clothing with holes in it, or oversized clothing

On approved casual days, employees may dress in casual clothing, although dress standards still require a neat, clean appearance. All clothing must be clean, neat, and fit properly.

Managers have the discretion to specify that more formal business attire be worn when employees are asked to attend business meetings with clients, either in Company offices or otherwise.

Maintain good habits of personal grooming, hygiene and neatness as they are part of your appearance and reflect a professional image.

Facial hair is permitted if it is neat and well-trimmed. Jewelry must be worn in good taste and should not be functionally restrictive or dangerous to job performance. Facial jewelry (i.e. nose rings, eyebrow rings, tongue ring) or jewelry on body parts other than the ear lobe that are visible to the public may not be worn while working. All tattoos must be small or covered at all times and may not be offensive in nature. Employees are expected to be conservative in the wearing of makeup, scented products, and hairstyles.

Employees who dress in a manner that is inconsistent with this Dress Code may be sent home to change. The expectation is that the employee will change into appropriate attire and return promptly to work.

The Company will enforce the Dress Code consistently but in a way that respects the personal circumstances of each employee. If the dress code interferes with an individual's religious belief, their disability or any other ground protected in human rights legislation, the employee may request an exemption or accommodation.

2.2.4 Inclement Weather/Emergencies

As always, Solve Energy is concerned for the safety and well-being of its employees. Employees must use their best judgment when traveling to and from the office during inclement weather. From time to time, extreme weather conditions (i.e. blizzards, hurricanes, etc.) or other emergency situations (i.e. heightened national/local security measures, etc.) may make getting to work difficult.

Should conditions in the employees' area prevent them from getting to the office, employees should contact their supervisor/manager as soon as possible. Employees should also attempt to contact their supervisor/manager at their cellular phone or home phone number if the number is provided to them.

If the decision is made to close the office, eligible employees may use vacation/Paid Time Off or take the day as unpaid. Please see the Handbook's section on Call-In Pay regarding office closures after employees have already reported to work.

2.3 Standards of Conduct

Solve Energy has an outstanding reputation for ethical behaviour and fair dealing.

In the performance of an employee's duties, the employee may deal with a variety of people and organizations. Failure to interact courteously and tactfully with managers, co-workers, customers, vendors, or fellow employees to the point that productivity or morale suffers may subject an employee to immediate disciplinary action, up to and including termination.

All employees are prohibited from engaging in any conduct that reflects adversely on the reputation and business of the Company. All employees benefit from an atmosphere of good ethical conduct.

Employees who are aware of suspected misconduct, abuse of Company assets, or other violations of this policy are responsible for reporting such matters to their supervisor/manager or leadership.

Examples of prohibited conduct are listed below:

- Falsifying, removing or destroying information related to employment, payroll or work-related records or reports
- Completing another employee's time records
- Unauthorized removal or use of any Company property or that of a customer or co-employee

- Stealing property belonging to a co-worker, the Company, a supplier or a client
- Engaging in outside activities during working time
- Failing to maintain personal appearance standards
- Insubordination, including but not limited to failure or refusal to obey the orders or instructions of a manager or member of management, or the use of abusive or threatening language toward a member of management
- Using foul or abusive language at any time on Company premises
- Repeated display of negative demeanor towards co-workers
- Wasting, impairing or altering Company property
- Displaying an irresponsible attitude towards Company equipment and property assigned to an employee or in an employee's custody or care
- Failure to comply with Company policies and procedures

2.3.1 Conflict of Interest

No employee may directly or indirectly engage in any outside business or financial activity that will in any way conflict with the interests of the Company or that interferes with an employee's ability to fully perform his or her duties. Such activity may result in termination of employment. Any such possible conflict should be discussed with the employee's supervisor/manager and leadership to avoid any future problems.

2.3.1.1 Secondary Employment

Solve Energy recognizes that an employee may accept secondary employment or participate in other activities or organizations. Employees are expected to be available for all scheduled work, including overtime, as needed. Any outside interests, business, financial activity or employment which affect job performance or result in a direct or indirect conflict of interest or competition will not be permitted.

Employees must speak to their supervisor/manager if they are in a situation which appears to conflict with this policy.

2.3.2 Respect and Integrity in the Workplace

Solve Energy is committed to providing a workplace where all employees are treated with dignity and respect. The Company will act in a manner consistent with its obligations under the applicable human rights legislation and will provide a workplace that ensures equal opportunity free from discrimination based on grounds prohibited by the law.

2.3.2.1 Employment Equity

Solve Energy is committed to employment equity and achieving a qualified workforce that is representative, at all levels of the organization, of women, Indigenous peoples, persons with disabilities, people who are visible minorities because of their race or colour, and persons whose mother tongue is neither French nor English and who belong to a group other than an Indigenous peoples group or a visible minorities group, unless local provincial or territorial law reflect otherwise. Support of this principle is a basic responsibility of all Company employees.

2.3.2.2 Equal Pay for Equal Work, Equal Pay for Work of Equal Value and Pay Equity

Solve Energy is committed to paying employees at the same rate of pay where employees of both sexes perform substantially the same work, the performance of which requires substantially equal skill, effort and responsibility, and which is performed under similar working conditions. Where the Company establishes a justifiable difference in the pay rates based on factors other than sex, such as seniority or merit systems, such a difference will not be considered a violation of this policy or the applicable laws.

2.3.2.3 Workplace Accommodation

Solve Energy will provide reasonable accommodation unless doing so would cause undue hardship. The purpose of accommodation is to ensure that employees who are otherwise able to work are not unfairly excluded from doing so.

This policy applies to all employees of the Company as well as individuals applying for employment with the Company. The policy aims to ensure that the Company's policies and practices are inclusive and provide a process for dealing with accommodation requests.

This policy applies to all activities connected with the Company's workplace, including work sites, washrooms, cafeterias, training sessions, business travel, conferences, and work-related social gatherings.

Accommodation includes, but is not limited to, adapting working conditions, work assignments or workstations to address an individual's special needs based on characteristics protected by the applicable human rights legislation, such as disability. It is a shared obligation of the Company and the employee to identify reasonable workplace accommodations. The Company reserves the right to request medical documentation from the employee which attests to the ability of the employee to safely carry out their assigned duties or any duties that may be assigned as a result of an accommodation.

Accommodation may include, but is not limited to, providing:

- Technical aids or workstation modifications
- Modified or alternate work duties
- Task bundling
- Flexible time off work or leaves of absence
- Change in work location
- Communication services

The Company is responsible for:

- Eliminating barriers that prevent people from accessing, or being included in, the workplace
- Minimizing the need for individual accommodation by regularly reviewing rules, policies, by-laws and practices to ensure that they are not discriminatory
- Ensuring that all employees and job applicants are advised of their right to be accommodated
- Dealing with requests for accommodation in a timely, confidential and sensitive manner
- Providing individual accommodation to the point of undue hardship
- Ensuring that employees are able to safely carry out their assigned duties
- Ensuring the safety of the employee involved, their colleagues, and the public in general
- Ensuring that this policy is effectively implemented

Supervisors/Managers are responsible for:

- Treating all employees and job applicants with respect and dignity
- Identifying and eliminating barriers that prevent people from accessing, or being included in, the workplace
- Dealing with requests for accommodation in a timely, confidential and sensitive manner

- Involving individuals requiring accommodation in the search for accommodation
- Informing individuals requiring accommodation what information they need to provide to be accommodated
- Initiating a discussion about accommodation when they are aware that an employee or job applicant may have a need for accommodation, but is unable, for any reason, to articulate that need

Employees are responsible for:

- Making their accommodation needs known, to the extent that they are able
- Helping to identify potential accommodation options
- Providing documentation in support of their request for accommodation, including information about any restrictions or limitations
- Accepting an offer of accommodation that meets their needs, even if it is not their preferred accommodation option

Employees needing an accommodation should contact their immediate Supervisor/Manager for assistance. Accommodation requests should, whenever possible, be made in writing.

All accommodation requests will be taken seriously. No person will be penalized for making an accommodation request.

2.3.2.4 Discrimination, Harassment and Violence

Solve Energy is fully committed to creating an environment where all individuals are treated with professionalism, respect and dignity. Accordingly, the Company will not tolerate discrimination, harassment, including sexual and psychological harassment of any form and violence made by or directed against employees, clients or visitors in the workplace or within a work-related context.

Discrimination is any intentional or unintentional act, which creates a distinction between certain individuals or groups based on a prohibited ground or grounds and results in negative, adverse or differential treatment.

In connection with this policy, the Company expressly prohibits any form of discrimination based on the following or any other characteristic protected by applicable law, unless a bona fide occupational requirement exists and reasonable accommodation would cause undue hardship, and prohibits any harassment based on:

- Race or colour
- Age
- Family status and family affiliation
- Social condition or origin
- Marital status or civil status
- Ethnicity, national or aboriginal status or place of origin
- Religion or creed
- Criminal charges, criminal record or record of offences (including pardoned offences)
- Gender or sex or pregnancy
- Sexual orientation
- Gender identity or gender expression
- Genetic characteristics
- Language
- Physical or mental disability, including dependence on alcohol or drugs and irrational fear of contracting an illness or disease

- Political belief
- An individual's association with another individual or class of individuals having characteristics listed above

Examples of discriminatory behaviour include:

- Systemic discrimination such as implementing a policy, standard or practice which appears to be neutral but has the effect of imposing a burden on or denying a benefit to an individual or group based on prohibited grounds
- Differential or adverse treatment of an individual or group based on prohibited grounds
- Workplace harassment based on a prohibited ground

Workplace harassment is a course of vexatious or objectionable conduct, comment or display known or ought reasonably to be known to be unwelcome or that adversely affects a person's psychological or physical well-being. It includes psychological harassment, which includes any vexatious behaviour in the form of repeated and hostile unwanted conduct, verbal comments, actions or gestures that affects an employee's dignity or psychological or physical integrity that results in a harmful work environment for the employee. Workplace harassment is also referred to as "harassment" in this policy.

It is any behaviour that demeans, humiliates, intimidates or embarrasses a person, and that a reasonable person should have or ought to have known would be unwelcome, including bullying.

"Workplace harassment" includes what is sometimes referred to as discriminatory harassment (i.e. harassment based on any of prohibited grounds provided for under the applicable human rights legislation) as well as sexual harassment. Harassment that is not based on a protected ground is sometimes called workplace harassment.

"Workplace harassment" includes psychological harassment. Psychological harassment means any vexatious behaviour in the form of repeated and hostile or unwanted conduct, verbal comments, actions or gestures, that affects an employee's dignity or psychological or physical integrity and that results in a harmful work environment for the employee. For greater certainty, psychological harassment includes such behaviour in the form of such verbal comments, actions or gestures of a sexual nature. A single serious incidence of such behaviour that has a lasting harmful effect on an employee may also constitute psychological harassment.

Examples of behaviours which, depending on the circumstances, can be considered to be harassment, including harassment based on a protected ground, include:

- Verbal or physical abuse, threats, derogatory remarks, jokes, innuendos or taunts about appearance or beliefs
- The display of pornographic, racist or offensive images
- Practical jokes that result in awkwardness or embarrassment
- Unwelcome invitations or requests, either indirect or explicit
- Intimidation, leering or other objectionable gestures
- Condescension or paternalism that undermines self-confidence
- Unwanted physical contact such as touching, patting, pinching, punching and outright physical assault

Sexual harassment is discrimination based on the ground of sex, gender, gender identity, gender expression and related prohibited grounds, which is prohibited under human rights legislation. Sexual harassment means:

- Vexatious conduct or a course of comment against a worker, in a workplace because of sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or gender expression where the course of comment or conduct that is known or ought reasonably to be known as unwelcome
- A sexual solicitation or advance made to an individual where the other individual is in a position to confer a benefit on, or deny a benefit to, the individual to whom the solicitation or advance is made, where the individual who makes the solicitation or advance knows or ought reasonably to know that it is unwelcome
- A reprisal or threat of reprisal against an individual for rejecting a sexual solicitation or advance

Examples of behaviours considered to be sexual harassment:

- Sexist jokes
- Unwanted touching, petting, massaging or caressing
- Sexually suggestive or obscene comments or gestures
- Sexually derogatory or degrading remarks
- Leering, staring, or stalking
- Unwelcome sexual flirtations, advances, propositions
- Comments on an individual's sexual attractiveness
- Displaying or sending printed or electronic material (e.g. cartoons, calendars, websites email or text messages) of a sexually suggestive nature
- Unwelcome inquiries or comments about one's sex life, sexual orientation or sexual preferences
- Persistent unwelcome social invitations
- Requests for sexual favours or threats if sexual favours are not provided
- Sexual assault

Comments or compliments of a socially acceptable nature that are generally considered acceptable are not considered to be sexual harassment, unless the recipient has indicated that they are not acceptable to that individual.

To avoid any potential for confusion, workplace harassment is not intended to, and does not, limit or otherwise constrain the reasonable exercise of management functions in the workplace. More specifically, the reasonable actions, requests or other conduct by a manager or supervisor that is part of their normal job functions will not constitute workplace harassment.

Examples of behaviours not considered to be harassment:

- Appropriate direction
- Coaching
- Appraisal
- Attendance management
- Discipline by a supervisor/manager that is based on legitimate business objectives and represents a legitimate exercise of management authority

Spousal, family or sexual violence is when physical or psychological violence experienced at home is brought into the workplace.

- Spousal violence occurs between two individuals who are in a romantic, intimate or spousal relationship. The type of violence is immaterial. The individuals may be in a current relationship or have been in a relationship in the past. Spousal violence often involves a dynamic of control.
- Family violence is when someone uses abusive behaviour to control or harm a member of their family, or someone with whom they have an intimate relationship.

Family violence includes many different forms of physical and emotional abuse, as well as neglect carried out by family members.

- Sexual violence includes any unwanted conduct of a sexual nature involving verbal comments, actions or gestures, and any other conduct based on sex that affects a man's or a woman's dignity, which is unwelcome, unreasonable and offensive to the person.

Violence is not always easy to detect. However, there are certain signs that may indicate that an employee is the victim of violence, namely:

- Physical signs (bruises, etc.)
- Significant changes in behaviour (nervousness, fatigue, etc.) or performance (decline)
- The desire to work overtime (the person appears to take refuge in their work)
- Sudden attendance problems
- Isolation from the rest of the team and refusal to participate in activities outside work
- Abnormal work interruptions for personal reasons (frequent phone calls, text messages and emails from their spouse, visits to the workplace by their spouse or another family member, etc.)
- Co-workers' observations or concerns about the person's behaviour
- A report made by a co-worker

Where the Company, as an employer, is aware or reasonably should be aware that spousal, family or sexual violence suffered by an employee may occur in the workplace, the Company will take all reasonable precautions to protect the employee at risk or likely to be at risk.

If an employee believes that spousal, family or sexual violence may occur in the workplace and could reasonably be expected to expose them or other employees, they should immediately discuss the matter with their Supervisor. The Company recognizes and respects the confidential nature of such information and is committed to reducing the risk of spousal, family or sexual violence in the workplace. The Company is committed to providing appropriate support and assistance to affected employees.

2.3.2.5 Reporting Discrimination, Harassment and Violence

It is the responsibility of the Company and each employee to create an atmosphere free of discrimination, harassment, and violence. In addition, it is the responsibility of all employees to respect the rights of their co-workers.

The Company will investigate and deal with incidents of harassment, discrimination or workplace violence in a fair and timely manner while, to the greatest extent possible, respecting the privacy of all concerned. Information about a complaint or incident will not be disclosed except to the extent necessary to protect workers, to investigate the complaint or incident, to take corrective action or as otherwise required by law.

The following process outlines the steps to take if an employee feels that they have potentially been subjected to discrimination, harassment, and/or violence that contravenes this policy:

1. Where possible, they should tell the other person that their behaviour is unwelcome and ask them to stop at the time of the incident or as soon as possible afterwards.
2. They should keep a record of incidents (date, times, locations, possible witnesses, what happened, your response). An employee does not have to have a record of events in order to make a complaint, but a record can strengthen their case and help the employee remember details over time.

3. If it is difficult to bring the matter to the attention of the other person, or if the unwelcome behaviour continues after the person was asked to stop, the employee should immediately report the incident to their Supervisor/Manager, in person and, if possible, in writing. In some situations, this may be difficult or inappropriate to report the incident to a Supervisor/Manager. In these cases, the employee may request a meeting with the next level of management to discuss the problem.

Please note, in the event of an emergency where there is an imminent threat to the safety of an employee or another person, an employee should dial 911 and remain in a safe place as near as possible to their workstation so they are available to answer questions for the purpose of an investigation.

Dealing with the Complaint

1. Once a complaint is received, it will be kept strictly confidential. An investigation will be undertaken immediately, and all necessary steps taken to resolve the problem. If appropriate, action taken may include conciliation.
2. Both the complainant and the alleged wrongdoer will be interviewed, as will any individuals who may be able to provide relevant information. All information will be kept in confidence.
3. The investigator will submit a written report to the Company's designated person. The investigator will decide whether there is enough evidence to conclude that discrimination, harassment and/or violence occurred. They will also identify all possibilities for resolving the situation and will recommend courses of action.
4. If the investigation establishes that an individual has engaged in harassing, discriminatory, violent, or other wrongful or inappropriate conduct, disciplinary action, up to and including termination, will be taken against the offending employee. Corrective action, remedies and changes in the work environment should be instituted in a timely manner after the investigator has handed in the report.
5. Once the Company has completed its investigation of the complaint, the complainant and the respondent (if an employee) will be informed of the results of the investigation and if applicable whether any corrective action has been taken.

If the investigation fails to find evidence to support the complaint, there will be no documentation concerning the complaint placed in the file of the alleged wrongdoer.

Regardless of the outcome of a complaint made in good faith, the employee lodging the complaint, as well as anyone providing information will be protected from any form of retaliation by either co-workers or superiors. This includes dismissal, demotion, unwanted transfer, denial of opportunities within the Company or harassment of an individual as a result of their having made a complaint or having provided evidence regarding the complaint. Any person who retaliates against anyone in relation to a concern raised or complaint made in good faith under this policy will be subject to discipline up to and including termination of their employment. If, however, the complaint is not made in good faith, frivolous, and/or an abuse of the Company's policy, the employee lodging the complaint may be subject to discipline, including termination.

Employees are expected to cooperate with an investigation conducted under this policy. Employees who fail to do so, who interfere with the process or who breach confidentiality resulting in a threat to the integrity of the investigation may be disciplined up to and including termination of employment.

Confidentiality

- While the investigation is on-going, the worker who has allegedly experienced harassment, discrimination and/or violence, the alleged wrongdoer(s), witnesses, and any individuals who may have relevant information should not discuss the incident or complaint or the investigation with each other or other workers or witnesses unless necessary to obtain advice about their rights.

- The investigator may discuss the investigation and disclose the incident or complaint-related information only as necessary to conduct the investigation, or as otherwise required under applicable law.
- All records of the investigation will be kept confidential to the extent possible.

The Company will keep records of the investigation including:

- A copy of the complaint or details about the incident
- A record of the investigation including notes
- A copy of the investigation report (if any)
- A summary of the results of the investigation that was provided to the worker who allegedly experienced the workplace harassment, discrimination and/or violence, and the alleged wrongdoer, if a worker of the employer
- A copy of any corrective action taken to address the complaint or incident of workplace harassment

All records of the investigation will be kept confidential. Records will be kept for three (3) years. This policy will be reviewed by the Company as often as is necessary, but no less frequently than once every twelve months.

2.4 Company Property

2.4.1 Company Equipment

Employees represent the Company in the eyes of the public. Therefore, the way employees are perceived by the public is the way the Company is perceived.

When material or equipment is used by or assigned to an employee for Company business, it is the employee's responsibility to see that such equipment is used properly. However, at all times, equipment assigned to an employee remains the property of the Company and is subject to reassignment and/or use by the Company without prior notice or approval from the employee. This includes but is not limited to computer equipment and data stored thereon, voice mail, records and employee files. In addition, the use of Company vehicles and Company equipment/property for personal activities is strictly prohibited.

2.4.2 Personnel File Access

The Company maintains a personnel file on each employee. The personnel file may include such information as the employee's job application, resume, records of training, documentation of performance appraisals and salary increases, and other records required to maintain the employment relationship. The Company will take all security measures necessary to ensure the protection of personal information collected from employees in accordance with applicable privacy laws.

All employees are entitled to access personal information collected about them in the course of their employment. Employees who wish to review their own file should contact their manager. With advanced notice, employees may review their own personnel files in the Company offices and in the presence of an individual appointed by the Company to maintain the files.

When reviewing their file, employees may not add anything to or remove anything from their personnel file. Employees may take notes while reviewing their personnel file, but they may not write notes on anything in their personnel file. Employees are not permitted to photocopy anything in the personnel file, unless it is personal information the employee would already have access to, e.g., a copy of their performance appraisal. If an employee believes that personal information in their file is inaccurate, they may request a correction.

Personnel files are the property of the Company and access will be restricted to authorized individuals within the Company. Only authorized leadership is able to release information about current or former employees. Disclosure of personnel information to outside sources will be limited and may require employee consent. However, the Company will cooperate with requests for disclosure of employee records where required by law.

2.4.3 Use of Company Property

Employees are responsible for items issued to them by the Company or in their possession or control, such as but not limited to the following:

- Credit cards
- Tools and equipment, including Company-provided clothing
- Written materials such as manuals, forms and marketing products
- Database information
- Customer lists
- Files and documents
- Laptops, computers and related accessories (e.g. monitor, webcam, software, etc.)
- Company vehicle

Although the Company strives to ensure that each employee has access to the resources needed to perform their job, the Company also expects all employees to understand that use of those resources is limited to the performance of their jobs. Any unauthorized use, retention or disclosure of any Company resources or property will be regarded as theft warranting disciplinary action up to and including termination and may prompt various civil and/or criminal legal actions.

The Company does not assume any responsibility for personal property of employees that may be lost, stolen or forgotten by the employee. Employees are responsible for any personal belongings that they bring onto Company premises.

2.4.4 Vehicle Use for Business Purposes

Personal Vehicle Use

If use of the employee's personal vehicle on Company business is necessary, the employee will be reimbursed in accordance with the current travel reimbursement rate, with prior approval by management. This does not include travel to and from work.

Employees using their personal vehicles for Company business must have proof of sufficient insurance and a current driver's licence. The Company will not be responsible for any losses, accidents, fines, or other liabilities that occur while an employee is driving his or her own personal vehicle while on Company business.

Employees should advise their supervisor/manager immediately if they should become involved in an accident while on Company business. Failure to do so may result in disciplinary action.

To protect employees and the Company from third party claims, employees involved in an accident while driving on Company business may be required to submit to a post-accident alcohol and drug test where there are reasonable grounds to believe the accident occurred due to impairment from drugs or alcohol. Please see the Drug and Alcohol section of this Handbook for more information on drug and alcohol testing.

Company-Owned/Leased Vehicles

Personal use of Company-owned or leased vehicles is strictly prohibited. Because the Company's insurance only covers employees driving or riding in Company vehicles while on Company business, no one other than authorized employees shall be allowed to operate or ride in Company vehicles at any time.

It is the employee/driver's responsibility to see that their Company vehicle is properly maintained. This includes regular washing, cleaning, maintenance, and repair of minor damage.

If an employee's licence is suspended or revoked by the relevant provincial or territorial department of motor vehicles for any reason, the employee may not drive on Company business or drive a Company vehicle. If an employee's driver's licence is suspended or revoked, the employee is responsible for notifying the Company immediately.

If an employee who is required to operate a motor vehicle as part of their job duties has operated a Company vehicle with a suspended or revoked licence, the employee will be subject to disciplinary action, which may include termination. Employees must observe safe driving practices: this includes wearing seat belts, obeying the speed limit, traffic signs and signals, as well as refraining from using a mobile device (talk, text or email) while driving.

Employees are responsible for any tickets they may receive relating to speeding, parking or other traffic violations. Accidents are to be reported to the employee's supervisor/manager at once. Failure to do so may result in disciplinary action, which may include termination.

To protect employees and the Company from third party claims, employees involved in an accident while driving on Company business may be required to submit to a post-accident alcohol and drug test where there are reasonable grounds to believe the accident occurred due to impairment from drugs or alcohol. Please see the Drug and Alcohol section of this Handbook for more information.

2.5 Expense Reimbursement

Solve Energy will reimburse employees for reasonable and necessary expenses incurred in the course of their duties. This includes but is not limited to job-related travel, tools, safety equipment, and other role-specific costs.

The following guidelines apply to all expense submissions:

- All expenses must be approved by the employee's manager prior to being incurred wherever possible.
- Expenses exceeding $500 that are not directly related to a specific job or installation require additional approval from the Finance team before being submitted.
- Employees must submit expenses with original receipts and a brief description of the business purpose.
- Expenses submitted without prior approval or proper documentation may not be reimbursed.
- Personal expenses are not reimbursable under any circumstances.

Employees with questions about expense eligibility should check with their manager before incurring the cost.

2.6 Communication and Information Systems

Nothing in any of the following policies is designed to interfere with, restrain, or prevent employee communications regarding wages, hours, or other terms and conditions of employment.

2.6.1 Electronic Communication and Information Systems

The Company's communication and information systems consist of both traditional systems (i.e. telephone system including voice mails and faxes) and electronic systems (i.e. internet, email, video calling), and the software and hardware (which may include smart phones, desktop computers, laptop computers, and tablets) by which employees access and utilize the above communication and information systems. Employees are expected to adhere to proper use of all communication and information systems.

Because the communication and information systems provided by the Company are to be used exclusively for conducting the business of the Company, employees should have no expectation of privacy as to any correspondence (whether oral or written) transmitted through the use of one of these systems, or information processed by or contained on one of these systems. The Company may retain, archive, and monitor any such information and/or communications. If employees require a private means of communicating and sending communications while in the workplace, they must use a personal device unconnected to our network.

All content created, saved, and/or shared using the Company's traditional and electronic communication and information systems are a form of corporate correspondence, and are subject to the same internal and external regulation, security and scrutiny as any other corporate correspondence. Email communications must be written following customary business communications practices as is used in Company correspondence. Email communications are official internal Company communications, which may be subject to summons in legal proceedings.

The Company's communication and information systems shall not be used as a forum to promote religious or political causes, or any illegal activity. Transmission of sexually explicit images, messages, cartoons, or other such items, or messages that may be construed as harassment or disparagement of others based on any prohibited grounds in applicable human rights laws are also prohibited on the Company's information systems.

Employees shall not attempt to gain access to another employee's personal information systems and messages. The Company, however, reserves the right to monitor systems use through content and traffic analysis and restoration of deleted information from time to time, without further notice to the employee.

Employees MUST NEVER share their personal passwords to any information systems.

Any violation of these guidelines may result in disciplinary action, up to and including termination of employment.

2.6.2 QuickBooks Workforce

Solve Energy uses QuickBooks and QuickBooks Workforce for payroll processing, time tracking, and HR administration. Employees are required to use QuickBooks Workforce to clock in and out and access pay stubs and earnings statements. All timekeeping and payroll records submitted through the platform are considered official Company records. QuickBooks is not used for scheduling or day-to-day communication — those functions are handled through Email, Slack, and Notion.

2.6.3 Email and Internet Usage

The Company's electronic communication and information systems (including email and internet) allow employees to be more productive. Email and internet are valuable in that they enable the collection, collaboration and sharing of information, but they can also cause problems if they are misused. It is extremely important that we all use good business judgment when using our electronic information systems. Every employee has a responsibility to maintain and enhance the Company's public image, and to use email and the Internet in a productive manner.

The Company's electronic information systems are to be used for Company business only. The Company reserves the right to review how employees are making use of these business tools. Misuse will result in appropriate disciplinary action up to and including termination.

Hardware (computers, laptops, tablets, and smart phones) and software furnished to employees are Company property intended for business use. To ensure compliance with this policy, computer and email usage may be monitored from time to time. As such, employees should not expect privacy when using Company computer and email networks.

Email may not be used to solicit others for commercial ventures, or religious or political causes. Misuse includes the display or transmission of sexually explicit images, messages, and cartoons. Other such misuse includes, but is not limited to, ethnic slurs, racial comments, off-color jokes, or anything that may be construed as harassment, bullying, discrimination or workplace violence.

Internet access is provided by the Company to assist employees in obtaining work-related data and technology. While Internet usage is intended for job-related activities, incidental and occasional brief personal use is permitted within reasonable limits. All Internet data that is composed, transmitted, or received via our computer communications systems is part of the official records of the Company and, as such, is subject to disclosure as required by law.

The following behaviours are examples of prohibited actions that can result in disciplinary action:

- Sending or posting discriminatory, harassing, or threatening messages or images
- Stealing, using, or disclosing someone else's code or password without authorization
- Copying, pirating, or downloading software without permission
- Sending or posting trade secrets or proprietary information outside of the organization
- Violating copyright law
- Participating in the viewing or exchange of pornography or obscene materials
- Attempting to break into the computer system of another organization or person
- Using the Internet for political causes or activities, religious activities, or any sort of gambling or gaming
- Engaging in any other illegal activities

2.6.4 AI and Technology Tools

Solve Energy embraces the use of technology to help our team work smarter and faster. Employees may use AI-powered tools such as Claude, ChatGPT, and similar platforms to support their work where appropriate. The following guidelines apply:

- AI tools may be used to assist with drafting, research, summarizing, and other productivity tasks.
- Employees must never input confidential Company information, customer data, trade secrets, or proprietary information into any AI tool or third-party platform.

- Outputs generated by AI tools must be reviewed by the employee before use. Employees remain fully responsible for the accuracy and quality of all work submitted.
- AI tools may not be used to misrepresent authorship or to deceive customers, partners, or colleagues.
- Use of AI tools must comply with all other Company policies including information security and acceptable use.

If you are unsure whether a particular tool or use case is appropriate, check with your manager before proceeding.

2.6.5 Information Security

Employees have been entrusted with one of the Company's most valuable assets – information – and they have the responsibility to protect it and to see that it is used only for its intended business purpose. We use information on a daily basis that could be useful to competitors and others who would misuse it.

Confidential information appears in many forms, such as: computer records, word processing documents, letters and memos, paper reports, electronic data storage, and conversations.

The confidential information employees use every day must be protected from disclosure to competitors and those who would misuse it. Employees must always remember these rules when handling confidential information:

- Do not disclose to anyone outside the Company any information relating to the Company that has not been disclosed to the public, without appropriate management approval or as required by law, at any time during or after the termination of the employment relationship.
- Routinely take precautions to keep confidential information from being disclosed. This includes making sure such information is not displayed on employees' desks or in their work area where it can be seen by anyone.
- Require third-party recipients of restricted Company information to keep such information confidential.
- Do not reveal Company trade secrets or the trade secrets of a previous Company or accept improperly obtained proprietary information about another Company.
- Respect the confidentiality of private information concerning our employees and proprietary information from customers, suppliers and other third parties that comes to our attention under an understanding of confidentiality.

2.6.6 Security of Company Property

Company property and equipment identified for a specific job, such as computers, should be stored in a secured area with controlled access to prevent theft of such equipment.

Laptops and electronic devices issued by the Company are often stolen or lost. These devices must remain in the employee's possession at all times or be secured in a locked office or cabinet if the employee leaves them unattended. If the employee must leave their laptop or mobile device in a vehicle, they must lock it in the trunk and out of plain sight; never leave it overnight in a vehicle. Employees must not check a laptop or mobile device as baggage on any form of transportation or leave it in a hotel luggage storage area.

Every time an employee leaves their workspace, they must lock their computer. An employee must log off their computer when they leave work for the day.

All employees are required to follow the established procedures for removing Company property – whether equipment, tools, or scrap – from the workplace. If an employee observes anyone removing property from Company premises without proper authorization, it must be reported to their manager.

2.6.7 Social Media

“Social Media” is defined as any social networking site or other virtual tool by which individuals are able to actively engage in communication with one another that can either automatically, or with discretion, be shared with other known and unknown users. Platforms including Facebook, LinkedIn, TikTok, Instagram, blogs, chat rooms and web bulletin boards are forms of social media.

The purpose of this policy is to assist employees in making responsible decisions about their professional and personal use of social media. It is in no way intended to interfere with, restrain, or prevent employees from engaging in honest communications.

Remember, under the Company’s Communication and Information Systems policy, Company provided electronic equipment remains at all times the property of the Company and may without further notice be monitored, and employees do not have any privacy right in content transmitted through or stored on the Company’s systems.

In accordance with this policy, the following would constitute irresponsible use of social media, and may subject employees to disciplinary action, up to and including termination:

- The intentional or inadvertent disclosure of any Company trade secret
- Criticism or disparagement of competitors, customers, or suppliers of the Company
- Disclosure of copyrighted materials or other intellectual property of someone other than the employee
- Displaying false information about the Company, any affiliated business entity, employee, supplier, or customer
- The expression of one’s own opinion or viewpoint as that of the position, viewpoint, statements, opinions or conclusions of the Company or any affiliated business entity
- Electronic harassment, bullying, discrimination, workplace violence or retaliation that would not be permissible in the workplace
- The use of a Company email address to register on social networking sites, blogs or other online tools utilized for personal use

Employees may not use the Company’s name to endorse or promote any product, commercial enterprise, opinion, cause or political candidate. This policy applies to all blogs and networking sites, without regard to whether they are accessible by the public or require a password.

Note: Solve Energy operates two primary Instagram accounts. @solve_nation is our sales and recruitment-focused channel used for team culture, hiring content, and rep-facing posts. @solveenergyinc is our main customer-facing account featuring operations, installations, and company milestones. Employees who wish to contribute content should speak with their manager about the appropriate channel for their role.

2.6.8 Software Usage

Software usage at Solve Energy must be a legally licensed copy. Employees must not duplicate copyrighted software for any reason without a written authorization from the software Company. Anyone who knowingly or unknowingly duplicates copyrighted software material is subjecting the Company, and themselves, to substantial penalties under the law.

The only software that is authorized for use on Company computers is that which has been purchased or developed by the Company or public domain software which has been certified virus or malware free. The introduction or use of any other software on any Company computer is a violation of this policy.

2.6.9 Telephone Use

Telephones play an important role in the Company's business. While phone usage is intended for job-related activities, incidental and occasional brief personal use of the office telephone is permitted within reasonable limits. Telephone records are subject to periodic review by management.

Company-provided cell phones are intended to be used for business purposes. However, incidental and occasional brief personal use of a Company-provided cell phone is permitted within reasonable limits. All communications via Company provided cell phones (including texts) may be monitored and there should be no expectation of privacy with regard to those communications.

Employees must adhere to all laws regarding the use of cell phones while driving. If employees must use cell phones while in their cars, they should use a hands-free phone, always keep their eyes on the road, and avoid complex or stressful conversations. Other electronic devices such as laptops, personal data assistants, and tablets must not be used while driving.

2.6.10 Personal Device Use During Work Hours

Incidental and occasional brief personal use of cell phones, smart phones, tablets or other electronic devices during work time is permitted within reasonable limits. Use of personal electronic devices that interferes with employee productivity or is distracting to others may subject an employee to disciplinary action, up to and including termination.

2.7 Workplace Safety

2.7.1 Personal Security

Solve Energy is committed to providing a secure environment for all employees and visitors. That requires not only everyone's support and cooperation, but also the commitment to take personal responsibility for workplace safety and security.

Employees are expected to obey all safety rules, be careful at work, comply with applicable occupational health and safety legislation, and comply with the Company Occupational Health and Safety policies. Employees must immediately report any hazard or unsafe condition to the appropriate supervisor/manager, including but not limited to (i) the absence or defect in any equipment or protective device of which they are aware which may endanger them and/or another worker, (ii) the contravention of any applicable health and safety legislation, and (iii) any situation of workplace violence or spousal, family or sexual violence. If an employee violates our Company safety standards and/or applicable occupational health and safety legislation, they may be subject to disciplinary action, up to and including termination of employment.

2.7.2 Crisis Management Plan

As a Company that cares about the well-being of its employees, customers and its neighbors in the communities where we do business, we work hard to ensure that crises are prevented. But, no matter how thorough our preventive practices, certain crisis situations can occur.

Crises are incidents that could seriously harm the Company's employees, customers, operations, property and/or reputation. They include, but aren't limited to, serious injuries or injuries involving multiple people, acts of nature, major information systems failures, explosions, product failures or tampering, employment-related issues, workplace violence, sabotage or chemical discharges in the communities where we do business.

In the event that a crisis situation develops, employees must gather as much information as they can without exposing themselves or others to harm or injury. Employees must then contact leadership immediately or in their absence, contact their immediate supervisor/manager.

Any questions around the Crisis Management Plan should be directed to the employee's immediate supervisor/manager.

2.7.3 Workplace Violence

Solve Energy is committed to providing a safe and healthy workplace that is free from violence or the threat of violence. In that regard, the Company will conduct periodic workplace violence risk assessments (at least once annually) and investigate any incidents or alleged incidents of workplace violence. Threats or acts of violence against Company employees or property, or the property of any employee, vendor, customer or visitor will be taken seriously and not tolerated.

Workplace violence is defined as:

- The exercise of physical force by a person against a worker, in a workplace, that causes or could cause physical injury to the worker
- An attempt to exercise physical force against a worker, in a workplace, that could cause physical injury to the worker
- A statement or behaviour that it is reasonable for a worker to interpret as a threat to exercise physical force against the worker, in a workplace, that could cause physical injury to the worker

Examples include but aren't limited to:

- Physical attacks, e.g. fighting, pushing, kicking
- Oral or written threats of violence, including threats made through social media, email or text/instant messaging

- Aggressive behaviour that creates a reasonable fear of injury to another person

The Company will address all factors that contribute to workplace violence, including bullying, teasing, and other aggressive and harmful behaviour. At least once annually, the Company will assess the effectiveness of policies and measures that they develop and update them as necessary. Please see Section 2.3.2.5 for reporting procedures.

2.7.4 Safety-Sensitive Positions

Solve Energy operates in environments where certain roles involve direct safety risk. Roles including but not limited to Installation Technicians, Electricians, Roofers, and any field-based staff performing rooftop, electrical, or on-site work, as well as employees required to drive Company vehicles, are considered safety-sensitive positions. Employees in these roles must be fit for duty at all times while performing their responsibilities.

2.7.5 Work-Related Injuries and Illness

Any employee who is injured on the job or who becomes ill due to direct or indirect contact with materials on the job is to report the injury or illness to their supervisor/manager immediately.

Unsafe conditions on Company or customer premises must be made safe or reported to your supervisor/manager before proceeding to work.

If an injury or illness requires emergency medical treatment, this treatment is to be provided immediately by whatever means are necessary. If it is not an emergency, the employee is required to see a qualified health practitioner or visit a medical facility at the earliest possible time.

The health practitioner or medical facility must be told that the visit results from a work-related injury or illness.

The injured or ill employee must report to their supervisor/manager immediately following the medical treatment to complete an accident report and workers' compensation claim. If the employee's regular working hours have expired before a report can be made, the employee must contact their supervisor/manager at the start of their next regularly scheduled work shift.

2.7.6 Smoke-Free Workplace

Solve Energy provides a smoke-free environment for its employees, customers, and visitors. We have adopted this policy because we have a sincere interest in the health of our employees and in maintaining pleasant working conditions. An outside smoking area may be provided in accordance with the applicable legislation relating to smoke-free places.

Smoking is prohibited inside Company premises or in Company-owned vehicles. This applies to any substances intended to be heated and inhaled by the user (whether such substances contain nicotine), and includes cigars, pipes, vaporizers and electronic cigarettes.

2.7.7 Drug and Alcohol

The Company recognizes that employees under the influence of drugs and/or alcohol may pose serious health and safety risks to themselves, to their fellow employees, to the Company's customers and to the general public. Guidelines for Employees with Addictions

The Company recognizes that some employees may have a drug and/or alcohol addiction, and that such an addiction may be considered a disability under applicable human rights law. The Company promotes early diagnosis of a drug and/or alcohol addiction. The Company encourages any employee who suspects that they might have such an addiction to seek appropriate advice and/or treatment promptly.

Employees must advise management if they have a drug and/or alcohol addiction that may cause them to be impaired in the workplace, and/or that may negatively impact job performance, so the Company can make reasonable accommodation efforts in accordance with its obligations at law. Such disclosure must take place prior to any violation of this policy and/or any occurrence that may necessitate a drug and/or alcohol test. Employees will not be disciplined for proactively disclosing a drug and/or alcohol addiction, and/or requesting accommodation in respect of such an addiction.

Violations of this Policy

Employees who fail to adhere to the terms of this policy will be subject to disciplinary action, determined by the Company at its sole discretion having regard to the nature of the violation, up to and including termination of employment for cause. Notwithstanding the above, the Company will comply with its duty to accommodate, as may be required by applicable human rights law.

2.8 Workplace Issue Resolution and Complaint Procedure

Solve Energy is committed to sustaining a positive work environment in which employees work constructively together. The workplace issue resolution policy and process has been established as a foundation for ensuring that the work environment remains positive.

The workplace issue resolution policy is intended to:

- Provide the opportunity to resolve a conflict or complaint quickly, fairly and without reprisal
- Improve communication and understanding between employees; and between employees and their Supervisor/Manager

- Ensure confidence in management decisions by providing a mechanism whereby management decisions can be objectively reviewed
- Support a positive work environment by allocating Supervisors/Managers responsibility for preventing and resolving conflicts and complaints
- Identify organization policies and procedures which need to be clarified or modified

All requests for conflict resolution, complaints and appeals shall be fully investigated and a reply will be given as quickly as possible. Penalty or retaliation against an employee who initiates conflict resolution or makes a complaint or participates in a problem resolution investigation will not be tolerated and will be subject to disciplinary action.

Issues related to discrimination, harassment and/or workplace violence must be handled through the process outlined in the Reporting Discrimination, Harassment and Violence section of this Handbook.

Informal Conflict Resolution and Complaint Process

1. Employees who experience a work-related conflict or who have a complaint are encouraged to first discuss the matter with their Supervisor/Manager. In some situations, this may be difficult or inappropriate. In these cases, the employee may request a meeting with the next level of management to discuss the problem.
2. If the employee's problem is not resolved after discussion with their Supervisor/Manager, the employee is encouraged to escalate the matter to senior leadership. Human Resources considerations will be reviewed and an investigation may be conducted if appropriate.
3. If the employee is not satisfied and wishes to pursue the problem further, they may prepare a written summary of their concerns and request that Senior Management review the matter. After a full examination of the facts, management will advise the employee of its decision. This decision shall be final.

The Company reserves the right to impose appropriate disciplinary action for any conduct it considers to be disruptive or inappropriate. The circumstances of each situation may differ, and the level of disciplinary action may also vary, depending upon factors such as the nature of the offense, whether it is repeated, the employee's work record and the impact of the conduct on the organization.

3. Time Off and Leaves of Absence

3.1 Leaves of Absence

Leaves of absences taken under this section are meant to be taken concurrently with an employee's leave entitlement under the applicable employment standards legislation. The Company will comply with the applicable employment standards laws: should any leave under this Employee Handbook be less than that which is provided under the applicable employment standards legislation, employees will be entitled to the greater of the two.

Unless otherwise indicated by the applicable employment standards legislation, these are all unpaid job-protected leaves. During a leave of absence, an employee leaves the job intending to return. The intent is to provide job protection so employees may take time off from their job for the leave.

Employees may qualify for multiple leaves under the applicable employment standards legislation.

3.2 Sick Days

Employees may be entitled to take up to 5 paid and 3 unpaid sick days each calendar year due to personal illness or injury. Entitlement to paid sick leave is subject to the successful completion of the 90-day probationary period. Any unused sick days at the end of the calendar year will be forfeited.

Employees who have used up all their paid sick days, but still require additional sick leave due to illness or injury, may be entitled to a further unpaid sick leave each calendar year in accordance with the applicable employment standards legislation. Any days taken as paid Sick Leave will count towards the employee's unpaid sick leave entitlement under the applicable employment standards legislation.

The employee must let the Company know in writing as soon as possible of their intention to take sick leave. If the leave must begin before written notice can be given, they must verbally advise the Company of the leave as soon as possible.

3.3 Personal Time Off (Company-Provided)

Employees may be entitled to take up to 3 unpaid days each calendar year as Personal Time Off to deal with certain personal or family illness or injury, as well as other matters, such as emergencies and urgent matters, weddings, death, funeral, illness, injury or care of a family member. Entitlement to Time Off is subject to the successful completion of the 90-day probationary period.

Employees who have used up all their Personal Time Off, but still require additional leave to deal with personal or family illness or injury, or other matters, may be entitled to a further unpaid leave in accordance with the applicable employment standards legislation.

Employees must let the Company know in writing as soon as possible of their intention to take such leave. If the leave must begin before written notice can be given, employees must verbally advise the Company of the leave as soon as possible.

3.4 Family Responsibility Leave

The Company understands that employees may, from time to time, be absent to fulfill certain family responsibilities related to the care, support and education of a family member. Employees may be entitled to take up to 5 days of unpaid leave under such circumstances, unless applicable employment standards legislation reflects otherwise.

Employees must give the Company as much notice as possible before taking the leave. The Company can ask an employee to provide documentation relating to the necessity of such a leave, including a medical certificate.

3.5 Compassionate Care/Family Medical Leave

The Company also understands that there may be times when employees are required to provide care and support to a family member who has a serious medical condition with a significant risk of dying within the next 26 weeks. Employees may be entitled to take up to 27 consecutive weeks of unpaid leave to care for or support of a person that they consider to be a family member.

Employees must give the Company as much notice as possible before taking the leave. The Company can ask an employee to provide a medical certificate, from a qualified health practitioner, stating that the employee's family member is seriously ill.

3.6 Death or Disappearance of a Child Leave

Crime-related death or disappearance leave is a leave for parents and guardians who are facing the death or disappearance of their child, including as a result from a probable crime. The employee is not entitled to the leave if charged with the crime. An employee may take up to 52 consecutive weeks of unpaid leave if their child has disappeared and up to 104 consecutive weeks if their child has died. Where a missing child is found alive during the 52 weeks leave period, the employee may continue the leave for another 14 days. In the unfortunate event that the child passes away as a result of a crime during the disappearance leave, the 104-week period will start immediately.

The employee must let the Company know in writing as soon as possible of their intention to take the leave. The Company can ask for reasonable evidence.

3.7 Critically Ill Family Member Care Leave

Critically ill family member care leave is a leave that allows employees to take time off work to provide care and support to their critically ill or injured family member. A qualified health practitioner must issue a medical certificate stating that the family member has a critical illness and the period of time for which the family member needs care.

The employee may take up to 36 weeks of unpaid leave to care for a critically ill or injured minor child, and up to 16 weeks of unpaid leave to care for a critically ill or injured adult family member. Under some circumstances, an employee may extend their leave or take a new leave during a 52-week time frame.

The employee must let the Company know in writing as soon as possible of their intention to take the leave. Where the leave must begin before written notice can be given, the employee must verbally advise the Company of the leave as soon as possible.

3.8 Pregnancy and/or Parental Leave

Employees may be entitled to pregnancy/maternity leave, paternity leave, leave for birth, adoption leave, or leave following termination of pregnancy, and parental leave as per the employment standards of the employee's jurisdiction.

Jurisdiction	Pregnancy / Maternity	Adoption Pre-Placement	Parental / Child Care	Max Combined (1 parent)	Termination of Pregnancy
British Columbia	17 weeks	7 weeks (pre-placement)	62 weeks	78 weeks*	6-12 weeks
Alberta	16 weeks	N/A	62 weeks	78 weeks*	N/A

* Where maternity leave is taken.

3.9 Bereavement Leave

Employees may take up to 3 unpaid days of leave for the death or funeral of an employee's family member. Eligible full-time employees may take up to 2 paid days of this leave entitlement. Additional days of unpaid leave may apply under the applicable employment standards legislation. Employees must give the Company as much notice as possible that they will take this leave.

3.10 Emergency Leave

Employees may be entitled to an unpaid leave if they are unable to work because: a government agency has declared an emergency, a medical officer of health has issued a directive or order telling an employee to stay off work, or the employee needs to care for a family member who is affected by one of the emergency situations noted above.

This leave may continue for as long as the emergency exists, and the emergency prevents the employee from performing the employee's work duties.

3.11 Domestic/Intimate Partner/Interpersonal/Family or Sexual Violence Leave

The Company is committed to providing its employees with a safe work environment and to assist and support employees who are victims of domestic, intimate partner, interpersonal, family, or sexual violence or whose child is a victim of such violence. To this end, the Company offers up to 10 days of leave of which the first 5 days are paid, and up to 15 weeks of unpaid leave.

The employee must let the Company know in writing as soon as possible of their intention to take such leave. If the leave must begin before written notice can be given, they must verbally advise the Company of the leave as soon as possible. The Company can ask an employee to provide documentation relating to the necessity of such a leave, including a medical certificate or a court order.

3.12 Citizenship Ceremony Leave

Employees may be entitled to take an unpaid leave of absence of up to half a day, or less, after 90 days of service if the employee chooses, to attend their citizenship ceremony.

If possible, employees must give the Company 14 days' notice that they plan to take the leave. If the Company asks, the employee must provide evidence that they are attending their citizenship ceremony on a particular day.

3.13 Jury Duty Leave

Employees may take unpaid leave for any period that the employee must be away from work as a result of being summoned or selected to serve on a jury or required to attend a court proceeding as a witness. Employees must give the Company as much notice as possible before taking leave.

3.14 Reservist Leave

When a reservist is deployed to an international operation or domestic emergency or service in the aid of civil power; required to commence active training; requires leave for treatment, recovery, or rehabilitation in respect of a physical or mental health problem that results from service in an applicable operation or activity; or requires a leave for another activity under the applicable legislation, unpaid leave may last as long as is necessary to accommodate the period of service.

The employee must provide written notice to the employer within a time frame reasonable and practicable in the circumstances.

3.15 Voting at Elections Leave

Employees who are eligible to vote are entitled to a minimum number of consecutive hours free from work on election day to attend a polling station. Employees who are eligible to vote are eligible for up to three (3) consecutive hours away from work in federal elections and up to four (4) consecutive hours for provincial elections, not counting the time normally allowed for meals. No deductions may be made in wages, nor any penalties imposed for such absence from work.

3.16 Details Applicable to All Leaves

3.16.1 Employment Considered Continuous

If an employee is on any of the leaves referred to in this policy, employment is considered continuous for the purposes of calculating annual vacation time and termination entitlements, as well as for determining entitlements under any Company benefit plans. With the exception of reservists' leave, the employee will continue to participate in the Company's benefits plans, unless the employee elects in writing not to do so. While on leave an employee will receive all increases in wages and benefits that they would have received if not on the leave.

3.16.2 Continuation of Benefits

Although leaves of absence are unpaid, employees will continue to receive group insurance benefits under the Company benefits program provided arrangements are made to cover the employee cost portion prior to the leave of absence starting. The exception to this is Reservists Leave. For Reservist Leave, the Company will allow the employee to keep up any benefit plans to which the employee belongs at the employee's own expense. If this option to keep up the benefits has an expiry date, the Company will give 10 days' written notice before the option to keep up the benefits is no longer in effect.

3.16.3 Return to Work

An employee returning to work from a leave of absence under this Policy will be returned to their former position or, if that position no longer exists, to a comparable position.

3.17 Vacation and Leaves of Absence

An employee who is on a leave of absence has the right to defer taking their accrued and unused vacation entitlement until the leave of absence expires (or until some later date if the Company and employee agree). This means that an employee who is on a leave of absence will not lose any accrued and unused vacation time or vacation pay because they are on a leave. While on a leave of absence, an employee will continue to accrue vacation time and will be paid vacation pay in accordance with the applicable jurisdiction's employment standards legislation, unless their employment contract provides for greater vacation entitlement.

If employment is terminated, any accrued unused vacation will be paid upon termination in accordance with the applicable employment standards legislation.

3.18 General Holidays

Solve Energy observes the following paid holidays each year:

- New Year's Day (January 1)
- Family Day (Third Monday of February)
- Good Friday (Friday before Easter)
- Victoria Day (Monday preceding May 25)
- Canada Day (July 1)
- BC Day / Civic Holiday (First Monday in August)
- Labour Day (First Monday in September)
- National Day for Truth and Reconciliation (September 30)
- Thanksgiving (Second Monday in October)
- Remembrance Day (November 11)
- Christmas Day (December 25)

The Company may substitute, unless otherwise restricted by the applicable legislation, any holiday for another day if their employees agree.

A holiday falling on a Saturday may be observed on the preceding Friday and a holiday falling on a Sunday may be observed on the following Monday.

Eligible employees may be entitled to receive a regular day's pay for a holiday not worked. Eligible employees who work on a general holiday may be entitled to receive both the amount they would have normally received for that day, and a premium rate of 1.5x regular wages for the hours worked on that holiday.

To be eligible for general holiday pay, an employee must have completed 90 days of service and have worked or earned wages on the scheduled 15 days of the 30 days before the holiday, as required by the applicable legislation.

If a holiday falls during a scheduled vacation, it will not count as a vacation day, and will be treated as a holiday.

3.19 Vacation Time and Pay

The Company's vacation year runs from January to December.

Unless their employment contract provides for greater vacation entitlements, employees earn 2 weeks of annual vacation time between 1 to 4 years of service. This increases to 3 weeks once an employee has completed 5 or more years of service with the Company. The Company must give the employee vacation time after completion of the applicable 90-day waiting period.

Generally, vacation pay is calculated as 4% of wages earned in the 12-month vacation entitlement period, increasing to 6% for employees who have worked for more than 5 years with the Company. Vacation pay is paid during vacation time taken.

Employees may request vacation time in increments of one day or more. The Company tries to accommodate all vacation requests. However, vacation scheduling is subject to operational needs. The Company reserves the right to make the final determination of an employee's vacation schedule.

Eligible employees may carry over up to 4 days of unused vacation time to the following calendar year.

When an employee leaves the company, any unused earned vacation entitlement will be included in the employee's final pay.

4. Employee Benefits

4.1 Our Employee Benefits Programs

Solve Energy offers its eligible employees a comprehensive benefits package through RWAM Insurance Advisors. The package includes:

- Extended Health / Medical
- Dental
- Group Term Life Insurance
- Long-Term Disability (LTD)
- Health Spending Account (HSA)
- Wellness Spending Account (WSA)

Benefit eligibility is described in the benefits booklet associated with the benefit plan and is generally dependent upon many factors, such as the number of hours worked and employment classification. For a detailed description of the benefit plans and eligibility rules, please refer to your RWAM benefits booklet. For more information, including a copy of the benefits booklet, employees are invited to contact their manager.

4.2 Employee and Family Assistance Program

Solve Energy recognizes that a wide range of problems – such as marital or family distress, addiction, and/or substance abuse – not directly associated with an individual's job function can nonetheless be detrimental to an employee's performance on the job. Consequently, we believe it is in the interest of employees and the Company to provide an effective program to assist employees and their families in resolving problems such as these as the need arises. To this end, the Company provides an Employee and Family Assistance Program (EFAP) for employees and their eligible family members.

The EFAP is designed to provide voluntary, private confidential, professional counseling outside the workplace for any type of personal problem. The EFAP provides consultation services for referrals to local community treatment sources. All employees are free to use this program and are encouraged to do so. Employee visits to the EFAP are held in confidence to the maximum possible extent.

Participation in the EFAP does not excuse employees from otherwise complying with Company policies or from meeting normal job requirements during or after receiving assistance. Nor will participation in our employee assistance program prevent the Company from taking disciplinary action against any employee for performance problems that occur before or after the employee seeks assistance through the program.

The EFAP can be accessed through the QuickBooks Workforce portal or by contacting your manager for referral information.

4.3 Workers' Compensation Insurance

The applicable workers' compensation board provides insurance benefits if employees suffer a work-related injury or disease. Each claim is considered and treated separately, and benefits are based on each individual situation. Employees are advised to contact the applicable workers' compensation board for details on benefits.

An employee must report to the Company all workplace injuries when they occur, and ideally before they leave the worksite on the day of the injury, so the Company can provide or seek immediate health care for the employee if necessary. Timely reporting of injuries allows the Company to effectively investigate the work site, interview witnesses and collect the information required to understand the cause, and to report the injury to the applicable workers' compensation board if applicable. Employees must also actively participate in the Return-to-Work program, if applicable to their situation.

5. Training and Development

5.1 Our Commitment to Growth

At Solve Energy, we believe that investing in our people is investing in the future of the Company. We are committed to supporting the professional growth and development of every member of our team. Whether you are building technical expertise in solar and roofing installation, advancing your sales skills, pursuing industry certifications, or developing as a leader, Solve Energy supports your growth.

We actively support employees in pursuing job-relevant training and development opportunities including but not limited to:

- Solar and roofing industry certifications and technical training programs
- Electrical and safety certifications including WHMIS, first aid, fall protection, and related programs
- Sales and leadership development programs
- Courses and continuing education relevant to the employee's role and career path at Solve Energy

5.2 Approval Process

Solve Energy covers the cost of approved training and development activities. All training requests must receive advance approval from the employee's manager before enrollment or any costs are incurred. Employees should submit training requests with sufficient lead time to allow for review and planning.

Where training costs are covered by the Company, employees may be asked to complete an agreement outlining any obligations related to that investment. The Company reserves the right to determine what training opportunities it will support based on relevance to the employee's current role and the needs of the business.

Employees with questions about training support should speak with their manager before incurring any cost.

6. Performance

6.1 Performance Expectations

Solve Energy is a high-accountability, high-performance environment. Every employee is expected to bring full effort, ownership, and professionalism to their role every single day. Performance is not managed once a year – it is a continuous conversation between employees and their managers.

6.2 Ongoing Feedback

Performance at Solve Energy is managed through regular, real-time feedback. Rather than relying solely on scheduled formal reviews, managers are expected to provide consistent, direct, and honest coaching throughout the year. Employees are encouraged to seek feedback proactively and to raise goals or concerns with their manager at any time.

This means:

- Employees will receive direct feedback on their work as it happens, not months after the fact.
- Managers are responsible for clearly communicating expectations and addressing performance gaps promptly.
- Employees are expected to take feedback seriously, act on it quickly, and hold themselves accountable to their results and commitments.

Where performance concerns are not addressed through ongoing coaching, the Company may initiate the formal disciplinary process outlined in Section 2.1.6 of this handbook.

7. Pay Practices

7.1 Attendance and Punctuality

Solve Energy recognizes that regular attendance by employees is a condition of employment that is required in order to provide excellence in service to clients/customers and prevent undue work for fellow employees. Every employee is responsible for reporting to work on a regular, consistent basis unless they are personally ill, injured, or absent from work due to an approved absence.

7.1.1 Absences

It is recognized that illnesses and medical emergencies occasionally may prevent an employee from reporting to work as scheduled. All employees are required to notify their supervisor/manager at least an hour in advance of their start time if they are going to be absent from or late for work for any reason. If an hour notice is not possible in the circumstances, employees must give as much notice as is reasonable and practicable in the circumstances. Certain leaves of absence may require additional notice. Please refer to the Company Leave of Absence Policy for more details.

Employees must make every effort to speak with their supervisor/manager directly and are expected to know how to get in contact with their manager. Notifying anyone other than the employee's supervisor/manager (or an alternate member of management in the event of the supervisor/manager's absence) will not be considered proper notification, and the unauthorized absence or tardiness may result in disciplinary action. Employees should be prepared to explain both the reason for the absence and the time or date when they anticipate being able to return to work, plus any outstanding work-related matters that need to be addressed in their absence.

Employees must contact their supervisors/managers each day that they are absent. Management reserves the right to ask for a physician's statement in the event of a long-term illness (2 consecutive days or longer), or multiple illnesses or injuries, or in the event that Management has reason to believe that an employee's absence is unjustified.

In cases where an employee fails to notify their supervisor/manager after three (3) consecutive days of absence, the Company will notify the employee in writing of the consequence of continually failing to notify the Company of their absence and will request a response to its notification by a certain date.

If an illness or emergency occurs during working hours, employees should notify their supervisor/manager or, if the supervisor/manager is not available, leadership before leaving work. Similarly, their supervisor/manager should be notified at least one day in advance of known absences for medical or dental appointments.

7.1.2 Tardiness/Lateness

It is expected that employees will arrive and be ready to start work at their normal starting time. When an employee knows they will arrive later than their usual starting time, the supervisor/manager should be notified at least an hour in advance. Any hours of work missed because of tardiness may be scheduled for make up within the discretion of the employee's supervisor/manager within the same work week. Those employees covered by the overtime provisions dictated by applicable legislation who are not scheduled for makeup time or who do not work their scheduled make up time will not receive pay for such absences or tardiness.

Employees may be requested to make up lost time by staying later and/or coming in earlier when the employee's or the Company's workload warrants.

Excessive unexcused absenteeism and/or tardiness will be considered unsatisfactory performance, which may lead to discipline up to and including termination.

7.2 Call-In Pay

Occasionally employees may be scheduled to work their regular workday/shift and then the workday/shift is cancelled or shortened. In other situations, employees may be called in to work when they were not scheduled.

Employees who report for work are paid Call-In Pay. Call-In Pay is the minimum amount of compensation paid to an employee for reporting to work at the direction of the Company.

A minimum of 2 hours' pay at regular rates (or overtime rates if applicable) will be paid if an employee is called in for work even if there is no work to perform after the employee reports for duty.

Generally, no call-in pay will be paid if the impossibility to work stems from an unforeseen event that is beyond the control of the Company (e.g. fire, flooding, power failure, etc.).

7.3 Direct Deposit and Pay Statements

Solve Energy processes payroll through QuickBooks. Employees will receive their pay via direct deposit. Pay stubs and earnings statements are accessible through the QuickBooks Workforce portal, which provides employees access to their earnings statements showing gross pay and all deductions made for each pay period.

It is the employee's responsibility to keep their direct deposit information up to date. This can be done through the QuickBooks Workforce portal or by contacting management. Errors in pay should be reported to the employee's supervisor/manager immediately.

7.4 Employee Classifications

For purposes of salary administration and benefit eligibility the Company classifies its employees as follows:

- Full-time employees are those who are not in a temporary status and who are regularly scheduled to work a full-time schedule of 40 hours per week. Full-time employees may be placed on either hourly or salary payroll and are eligible for benefits.
- Part-time employees are those who are not assigned to a temporary status and who work continuously for a specified number of hours per week, which is generally less than 40 hours per week. Part-time employees are ineligible for benefits.

Employees will be informed of their initial employment classification and of their status upon hire. If an employee changes positions during their employment as a result of a promotion, transfer, or their employment responsibilities change, they will be informed by their manager of any change in their status.

7.5 Meal and Break Periods

It is the policy of the Company to comply with applicable employment standards legislation regarding meals and breaks. Supervisors/Managers have the right to determine when meal breaks will be scheduled taking business needs and production requirements into account. At management's sole discretion, employees may be provided with additional breaks over and above the minimum set out in applicable employment standards legislation.

Meal breaks are unpaid unless the employee's employment contract states that meal breaks will be paid. Meal breaks are not considered hours of work and are not counted towards overtime. Failure to return on time from breaks or lunch will subject the employee to disciplinary action.

Employees may be entitled to an unbroken one-hour meal break, so the employee is never working more than 5 consecutive hours without a break.

The Company is generally not required to pay employees for meal breaks. However, if an employee is required to remain at the job site, under the control of the Company and to be available to work if necessary during the break, then this will likely be considered work and the employee will be paid for this time.

7.6 Hours Free From Work

Under normal circumstances, employees may be entitled to a rest period of at least two full days of rest in each week.

Solve Energy may require that an employee work more than 5 days of work during a workweek in exceptional circumstances. In such situations, the Company will ensure to follow the applicable break and overtime rules.

7.7 Overtime Pay

Solve Energy recognizes that in order to provide the best possible service to our customers and maintain an efficient operation, it may be necessary for employees to work beyond their regular hours of work. Eligible employees will receive overtime pay in accordance with applicable employment standards legislation and overtime agreements where and when applicable.

Employees must have prior approval from their supervisor/manager to work any overtime. The supervisor/manager will attempt to provide the employee with reasonable notice when the need for overtime work arises. Please note however that advance notice may not always be possible.

Employees who work unauthorized overtime will be subject to disciplinary action, including termination of employment.

Non-eligibility for overtime: Employees who are non-eligible include but are not limited to those who work in a managerial or supervisory capacity, and professionals in industries outlined in applicable employment standards legislation and/or regulations.

7.8 Pay Periods

The Company maintains regularly scheduled biweekly pay periods for all employees. Payday is Friday.

If a scheduled payday falls on a Saturday, Sunday, or Company-observed holiday, employees will usually be paid on the day preceding the weekend or holiday.

All required deductions, including Income Tax, Canada Pension Plan (CPP) premiums and Employment Insurance (EI) premiums will be withheld. In addition, all authorized voluntary deductions, such as for health insurance contributions, will be withheld automatically from pay cheques.

Employees should review their pay cheque for errors. If they find a mistake, they should report it to their supervisor/manager immediately. The supervisor/manager will assist the employee in taking the steps necessary to correct the error.

7.9 Payroll Deductions

The statement of earnings reflects the employee's total earnings for the pay period as well as any mandatory or voluntary deductions.

Mandatory deductions include those:

- Required or permitted by federal, provincial or territorial law, including but not limited to federal, provincial or territorial income tax, Canada Pension Plan (CPP), and Employment Insurance (EI) premiums
- Deductions authorized by a court order, such as garnished child support payments
- Agreed to and authorized in writing by the employee, e.g. charitable donations, savings plan contributions, medical and dental premiums, life insurance and long-term disability premiums, pension plan or RRSP contributions, etc.

If an employee believes that any improper deduction has been made from their pay, they should immediately raise the matter with their supervisor/manager. If an investigation reveals that they were subjected to an improper deduction from pay, they will be reimbursed.

7.10 Time Reporting

All timekeeping and attendance records are Company records and legal documents, and care must be exercised in recording the hours worked, overtime hours and absences. It is the Company's policy to comply with applicable employment standards legislation requiring records to be maintained of the hours worked by our employees.

To ensure that accurate records are kept of the hours the employees actually work (including overtime hours where applicable) and of the accrued leave time they have taken, and to ensure that they are paid in a timely manner, employees are required to record time worked and absences using the QuickBooks Workforce time and attendance system. The system should be used daily at the beginning of their shift, beginning and end of the lunch period, and at the end of the day. Employees must ensure that their actual hours worked and leave time taken are recorded accurately.

Supervisors/managers are responsible for ensuring that approvals for time records are entered in a timely manner and by the applicable payroll cut-off to ensure that payroll may be processed according to schedule. Failure to do so causes delays in processing and disrupts the flow of the payroll cycle.

Once an employee clocks or logs in, work is to commence immediately. Failure to do so is considered falsification of timekeeping records. If an employee forgets to clock or log in or out, they must notify the supervisor/manager immediately, so the time may be accurately recorded for payroll.

Falsification of a time record or clocking in or out/entering time for another employee is a breach of Company policy and is grounds for disciplinary action, up to and including termination.

7.11 Travel Time for Eligible Employees

Commuting time is the time it takes an employee to get to work from home and vice-versa. This is not counted as work time.

Generally, the exceptions to this rule are:

- If the employee takes a work vehicle home in the evening at the request of the Company, the work time begins when the employee leaves home in the morning and ends when they arrive home in the evening.

- If the employee is required to transport other staff or supplies to or from the workplace or work site, time so spent must be counted as work time.
- If the employee has a usual workplace but is required to travel to another location to perform work, the time traveling to and from that other location is counted as work time.

Time spent travelling during the course of the workday is considered to be work time.

8. Employee Handbook Acknowledgment

This handbook is not a contract, express or implied, guaranteeing employment for any specific duration. Either you or the Company may terminate this relationship at any time, for any reason, with or without cause or notice. Please understand that no supervisor/manager or representative of the Company has the authority to enter into any agreement with you for employment for any specified period of time or to make any promises or commitments contrary to the foregoing. Further, any employment agreement shall not be enforceable unless it is in a formal written agreement and signed by you and the Chief Executive Officer. Where this handbook differs from your written employment agreement, your written employment agreement will govern.

I hereby acknowledge that I will read and understand the Company Employee Handbook and that it is my responsibility for becoming familiar with its contents. I understand it is my responsibility to follow the Company policies and to get clarification on any items that I do not understand. I agree to contact my supervisor/manager with any questions that may arise.

I understand the Company reserves the right to make changes at any time and that this information is provided on an advisory basis. I understand that the Company Employee Handbook is a confidential document and will be treated as such.

I further understand that nothing contained in this Handbook will confer upon me any right with respect to the continuation of employment.
